Retirements

Amy Hewes, director of marketing and communications for the College of Engineering, will retire on Friday, June 30. During nearly 20 years at Cal Poly, Hewes developed and led a marketing and communications program that has been integral in growing the college's reputation as a world-class engineering school. The program's strategic and creative framework is widely recognized as a model for colleges throughout campus. A graduate of Smith College, Hewes earned a master's degree in English in 2003 at Cal Poly. She and her husband, Kevin Clark, a poet and recently retired Cal Poly English professor, have been an active part of the campus' arts and literature community. The College of Engineering will host a reception in her honor from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 20, in the Kennedy Library's atrium (No. 35).

Shirley Huston, administrative support coordinator in the Physics Department, is retiring after 15 years of service. Huston joined Cal Poly in 2002 as an administrative support coordinator for the Kinesiology Department, where she served until she moved to the Physics Department in 2012. Huston arrived in the Physics Department just in time for the move from the Science Building (No. 52) to the Baker Center. Huston is moving back to South Africa. Her dedication and sunny disposition will be missed. A reception will be held from 4 to 5 p.m. Tuesday, June 13, in Fisher Science Hall (No. 33), Room 285.

Clare O'Brien, associate vice president in Student Affairs, is retiring after a 20-year career in higher education, including over a decade at Cal Poly. O'Brien is known for her leadership in strategic planning and implementation for the Student Affairs division. She also launched three new divisionwide functions, including marketing and communications, assessment and research, and fund development. O'Brien earned her bachelor's degree in economics at Cal Poly and completed her master's degree in education from Cal Poly while working as a financial aid counselor. The campus is invited to a retirement reception in her honor from 3 to 5 p.m. Monday, July 10, in the main lobby of the Administration Building (No. 1).

In Memoriam

Jeff Danes, a marketing professor with a long history of innovation in marketing, died May 26. He retired in June 2016 after 29 years of service to Cal Poly but continued to teach courses in new product development and launch. Co-developer and founder of several companies and the owner of three patents, Danes had a long history of research and innovation in marketing. He was engaged in innovative packaging and plastics research and involved in the Cal Poly Packaging Research Consortium. Danes was also working on break-through research in branding, brand image measurement and brand relationships. Danes earned a bachelor's degree in psychology from San Jose State University and a doctorate in communications from Michigan State University.
